

Task 1: In pairs, try to explain to your partner what honesty and integrity means to you. Try to give an example upon when you feel you acted with integrity or honesty within the professional environment

Suggestions for Post-Session Consolidation

Future thinking: Is it acceptable to reassure a patient who is facing imminent death?

Links to GMC guidance: Name the 8 specific cautions / convictions listed in the achieving good medical practice guidance as immediate items to report to your medical school.

Case study: Can you find any examples in the media of exam collusion between medical students, resulting in the entire cohort's results being voided? What lessons can be learnt from this?

Question? When you graduate from medical school; are you an F1 doctor, a junior doctor or a foundation trainee?

Task 2: A medical student is on his first week of placement in A&E. He has just looked at an x-ray, and thinks he can see a transverse fracture of the left radius. He has not discussed his thoughts with his supervising consultant. Listen to the audio clip: Give 3 examples of behaviour in this scenario not demonstrating honesty and integrity.

1)

2)

3)

Task 3: How would you demonstrate honesty and integrity in this scenario?

Task 4: Listen to a version of the same scenario. This student understands and accepts his level of knowledge, skill and competence. What are the possible consequences of the behaviours demonstrated by the medical student in the first audio clip?

Task 5: Listen to the audio clip. What would you do if you made a similar mistake?

Task 6: In pairs roleplay a conversation between yourself (the medical student), and the patient you have wrongly taken blood from.

Task 8: Listen to the audio clip. In your groups, discuss the following: Why should you not act in this way?

Task 9: Listen to the audio clip. Has the medical student responded appropriately in this situation?

Suggestions for Post-Session Consolidation

Future thinking: How would you approach a colleague if you discovered they had over-stated their qualifications for the job they have just started?

Links to GMC guidance: Read the GMC achieving good medical practice

Case study: Can you find any examples in the media of doctors failing to demonstrate honesty and integrity. What were the implications for the doctor, for the patients, and for the NHS?